Duke Divinity School and judicatories have agreed to be in regular consultation concerning student pastors. This is appropriate and necessary since student pastors do not work under on-site supervisors as do other students in field settings. This consultation will begin with the appointment process and continue through graduation. It will include sharing transcripts, reference materials (where appropriate), evaluations by superintendents and local churches, etc. The purpose of this flow of information is the formation of the student for ministry. In this task judicatories and Duke Divinity School share a mutual opportunity and responsibility. Your completion of this form, including your signature, is your consent to this educational process including the release of transcripts, references and other appropriate materials.
